Next Week's Scoop

Serve Others. Grow in Christ. Aspire to Excellence.

Those who live in the shelter of the Most High will find rest in the shadow of the Almighty. This I declare about the Lord:

He alone is my refuge, my place of safety; He is my God, and I am trusting Him.

Psalm 91: 1-2

WEEKLY HEALTH TIP

One of the most difficult aspects of returning to school can be getting adequate amounts of sleep after the more relaxed schedule of the summer. Oftentimes, we can push back our bedtimes, but our bodies are always dealing with the results of less time spent resting and recovering. Studies have shown that young people who get an appropriate amount of sleep for their age have "improved attention, behavior, learning, memory, and overall mental and physical health." (Johns Hopkins Children Hospital) Children who are ages 13-18 should be trying to get at least 8-10 hours of sleep. As we transition into the school year, try to start with good habits to encourage sleep and beneficial rest for incredible benefits.
